That was a great example of me trying to make LB immortal, but failing to think about the fact that I could be lured out to be shot by cannons, and being hit by a different damage code, that did not have LB protection!

My buddy who also had a Commodore 64 told me that in Ultima III he would lure Lord British out to his moat to a pirate ship and kill him with the ships cannons. My characters were always far too good for such despicable deeds.

I do remember watching some gamers demonstrate that feat. It is absolutely amazing what gamers/users will come up with when playing a game. And how did so many folks stumble upon the same idea?? I don't remember this being published in a game magazine, and it was pre-internet?
